Detailed description, further notes, observations – continued on next page

Two stone-built poss dwellings, byres or shieling huts, on low hill, each with entrance visible.

These are on a low mound close to marshland which has been drained, possibly during Improvements. However, this was also part of Mingary clachan lands, so this may be shieling settlement or 'satellite' to main clachan.

Present land use

Rough grazing

Past land use

Typical poor land on which dwellings were built

Present vegetation cover

Nearby monuments or associated features
